

The Great Spy Case

Lights. Camera. Action. Fanfare. Presenting . . . an authentic spy thriller produced by L. Maknach, of the Soviet Union, starring Oleg V. Penkovsky (executed)

Greville Wynne

A big role in a Red thriller and Greville Wynne (imprisoned). It tells the true story of this spring's famous spy case involving a Soviet agent and a British business man, and implicates no fewer than 12 other diplomats!

The film was premiered in Moscow yesterday before an audience of about 40 who seemed to have no reaction. It ended with this moral: "We welcome those who come to be friends with us, but those who carry out these spying activities will come to inglorious end." Said an American Embassy spokesman: "This sort of business is up to them. We won't have any comment."

Four stars from Pravda.